Since our founding in 2011, Endiro has always been about coming together to brew a better world. That vision has now inspired us to start the “Endiro Certified Growers Project” as an effort to empower coffee farming families and communities to build a brighter future for themselves and their next generation. Our goal is to help our network of some 2,000 farmers, most of whom are women, to make the journey from surviving to thriving. To accomplish this, we provide mentoring, training, equipment and infrastructure needed to increase crop yields and quality. We know our farmers personally, visit and stay in their communities, and give them prices that are both just and dependable. We also dedicate a portion of the proceeds of every bag of coffee we sell to development projects within the coffee villages, environmental protection inputs, and support for vulnerable children around the world.

Endiro Growers are committed to demonstrating that Ugandan coffee is truly among the very best in the world. To that end, we oversee every step in the coffee chain – from growing and harvesting to processing, roasting, and bagging – to ensure that each and every cup is amazing. Our Bududa Bukalasi represents the efforts of courageous women and men who this year have produced one of the finest coffees ever to come out of their region. Their passion for their crops and dedication to learning suggest that we have only just begun to taste what they can accomplish. This coffee is a micro-lot. This coffee is a true single origin. This coffee has surpassed our rigorous standards as a specialty coffee. We think you are going to love it!
